Advisory Board Member

Prof. Naomi Weinberger

Naomi Weinberger is Adjunct Professor at the School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA) of Columbia University.

She previously served as Director of the UN Studies program at SIPA, and offers an annual course on global governance at Columbia's Picker Center for Executive Education.

Her primary academic interests are in international security studies, with expertise in the Middle East. Dr. Weinberger is the author of Syrian Intervention in Lebanon (Oxford University Press) and many articles on global peace operations and conflict resolution. Currently, she is pursuing research on Palestinian security sector reform and on the regional implications of the Arab spring. She advocates effective multilateral responses to global challenges, including humanitarian emergencies
