Advisory Board Member

Prof. Tom Farer

Tom Farer served for fourteen years (1996-2010) as Dean of the Josef Korbel School of International Studies at the University of Denver and is now University Professor there.

He previously served as President of the University of New Mexico and as a two-term member and two-term President of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights of the Organization of American States, the first U.S. citizen ever to be elected to head a principal organ of the OAS.

In the U.S. Government, he has worked in the Departments of State and Defense. At the United Nations, he served as legal consultant for the 1993 UN operation in Somalia where decades earlier he had served as legal advisor and Karate Instructor for the National Police Force. He has taught law at Columbia, Rutgers, Tulane, Harvard and American Universities and foreign policy or international relations at Cambridge University, Princeton's Woodrow Wilson School and the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

He is on the editorial boards of the American Journal of International Law and the Human Rights Quarterly and on the editorial advisory boards of the Chinese Journal of International Law and The International Spectator, and served from 2010 to 2013 as co-editor of the journal Global Governance.

He has published twelve books and monographs, and his articles have appeared in such journals as the New York Review of Books, the London Review of Books, World Politics, International Organization, Foreign Affairs, Foreign Policy, The International Spectator, the Harvard and Columbia Law Reviews, and Human Rights Quarterly.

He has contributed chapters to many books including the Oxford Manual of Diplomacy, and his most recent books are Transnational Crime in the Americas (New York: Routledge, 1999) and Confronting Global Terrorism and American Neo-Conservatism: The Framework of a Liberal Grand Strategy (New York: Oxford University Press, 2008).

He is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and The Cosmos Club of Washington, D.C., and has been a Fellow of the Carnegie Endowment, the Council on Foreign Relations and the Smithsonian's Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars.
